

Want to win $5,000 for college?

Enter our Get Carducated video contest today!

Calling all young adults: Get behind the camera and win money for college!

Financial education is very important to us at St. Pius X Federal Credit Union and so are our young adult members.

That's why we're teaming up with Carducator (our own quirky superhero) and other Northeastern credit unions to offer Get Carducated, a video contest that gives young adults a chance to share their ideas about responsible debit, credit & ATM card use. We'll be giving away great prizes, like a $5,000 college scholarship, money for textbooks, a MacBook and more!

How it works:

St. Pius X Federal Credit Union members between the ages of 16-21 who are currently attending college or will be attending college by October 2012 are eligible to enter. All they have to do is make a short movie about responsible card use—why it's important, lessons they've learned, or any other angle they can think of—and submit it to the Get Carducated contest. The three videos with the most views on October 31, 2010, will win a variety of prizes. More information about the contest and Carducator is available at www.getcarducated.com. Even if you're not eligible to enter, we encourage you to visit the website and learn more about this contest. It's a great way to spread financial literacy and help young adults fund their college educations.

Get Carducated is brought to you by SPXFCU and Covera Card Solutions.
